

In a Suburb

The area where I live is ideal. It's a suburb not far from the centre and it's quite lively, but there's still a feeling of space, and my block of flats is surrounded by trees. It's also a handy place to live because there are good local shops, and a bus service that gets me into the centre in 15 to 20 minutes. The only disadvantage is that with the growth in the population, it's gradually becoming more built-up than it used to be, which is a shame.

Vocabulary:

suburb – an area outside the centre of a town, where a lot of people live built – up – with a lot of buildings a shame – a fact or situation that makes you feel disappointed handy – located near to things you need
